

Sasha Horne – Regional Director, South East Region
Atlanta, Georgia

Sasha Horne joined the WNCT Eyewitness News 9 team in February 2010 as a General Assignment Reporter and Digital Journalist. Sasha was born and raised in South Carolina and comes to Eastern Carolina from Atlanta where she served as a 2010 Master's Fellow and a freelancer for HLN (formerly CNN Headline News). There she learned the ins and outs of web and segment producing.

Prior to moving to Georgia, she spent several years working in administration and corporate communications in Washington, D.C. in both the non-profit sector and for the Department of Defense.

Sasha is a former Air Force reservist who served as the acting chief of public affairs and managed and directed community, media, and congressional relations for her reserve unit at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

Sasha began her journalism career as a teen correspondent for her hometown newspaper in Beaufort, S.C. She graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communication and Media Studies from the College of Charleston, and in May 2010 she earned a Master's Degree in Journalism from Georgetown University.

Sasha has completed internships in both radio at Georgia Public Broadcasting Radio in Atlanta and television at WUSA-9 in Washington, DC.

In her spare time, Sasha is actively engaged in her community. She assists fellow veterans as a volunteer Regional Operations Manager of the southeast region for Luke's Wings, a non profit organization that raises funds to fly the families of wounded service members to visit them while they recuperate in area hospitals.

Sasha is thrilled to be back in the Carolinas and is very excited about getting to know you! If you have a story idea or just want to say hello send her an e-mail at shorne@wnct.com.
